The Nursing Support Services Occupations Course is comprised of three components: Nurse Assistant, Acute Care for Nursing and Home Health Aide.

Nurse Assistant training prepares the student to take the California Competency Exam. State certification is required for employment as a Certified Nursing Assistant (CNA). Students will learn how to treat patients with compassion and patience while assisting them with day-to-day life tasks referred to as activities of daily living such as dressing, bathing and feeding. Students also learn to observe and record a patient’s condition, measure and record intake and output, and take vital signs. Students will learn the importance of documentation and reporting to the nursing staff. Ultimately, the student is prepared to work in a long-term care facility, a rehabilitation facility and an acute care facility.

Acute Care for nursing allows students to perform CNA skills in the acute care (hospital) setting. The course includes instruction in communication skills, patient observation and reporting, and reinforcement of CNA procedures with an additional emphasis on the specialized acute care areas. Students may train in the emergency department, medical/surgical, pediatrics, labor and delivery, mother/baby care, rehabilitation, orthopedics, and/or Cardi/telemetry areas. With this training, students will gain the knowledge needed to work in the acute care hospital setting.

Home Health Aide: Per the California Department of Public Health, students must be a Certified Nursing Assistant in order to be eligible to take the upgraded course in Home Health Aide training. Students will gain the knowledge to assist the client in the home setting. A Certified Home Health Aide (CHHA) monitors a patient’s condition by observing their physical and mental condition and assisting the client with personal services such as bathing, dressing, and grooming. The Home Health Aide program enhances a student’s service reputation by accepting ownership for accomplishing new and different requests, explores opportunities to add value to the job and updates their knowledge by participating in educational opportunities. These training opportunities allow the student to acquire highly employable skills that can be used in many work environments. Typical work environments include long-term care facilities, hospitals, and home health agencies amongst many others. The School of Career Education prepares students with the skills necessary to gain employment in the health industry.
